A Place of Angels

'The Love Angel - Guardian of Wishes'

I first photographed the Angels in 1994. Five years later I went to photograph them again, this time around to get that which I might have missed and to spend more time on the images that were becoming favorites - in particular my 'Love Angel'. The oddest thing happened that day - I could not find her! I remember so vividly calling in my mind and out of frustration maybe even vocally "where are you, where are you?" and then hearing a whispering voice "over here"... To my astonishment the 'voice' guided me into the bushes near where I was standing and there she was, totally obscured from normal sight! The hairs go up on the back of my neck even as I write this, remembering that factual moment! Why did I name this particular statue Love, well, she was not only the most beautiful but the most perfect work of art, with no pomp and circumstance she stands as a guardian and the honest feeling I got from standing next to her, was Love... Whilst I was working on the piece recently a thought came into my mind - I wondered if she could grant & guard wishes as happened at that astonishing moment in the leafy London suburb all those years back... for she is, as said by many, to be from "the most magical place in London"

The above events are true & happened on a day when the moon totally eclipsed the sun...

My Sacred Circle

We are all spiritual beings and when one chooses a person to be in their 'Sacred Circle' this person is special, very special indeed... The angel behind this passage of words is from a series of photographs that I took in the summer of 1994 in a sacred place of tended wildness in Highgate, said by many to be, "the most magical place in London". As I write this, 13 years have elapsed since I took the first photographs of 'my' Angels and in that time I have had several experiences related to these images, as have others, that I cannot explain. All good I might add, which leads me to believe that there is more to this world than the visibly tangible...

Good Friends

When I emigrated to the United States I left behind that which I held most precious - my family & friends, friends of over two decades and in some cases three! When I wanted to put some 'magical' words to one of 'my' angels (a photographic series) a thought came to me of my best friend of many years, a friend that was now 6,000 miles away. This card is dedicated to friends distant and near - very special friends... The angel behind this passage of words is from a series of photographs that I took during a visit back to England in the summer of 1994, in a sacred place of tended wildness in Highgate, said by many to be, "the most magical place in London". . .

I Love You

The Merriam-Webster dictionary defines Love as strong affection for another arising out of kinship or personal ties - the origin of the word Love is Middle English, from Old English lufu; akin to Old High German luba love. As 'Old English' as I am, I decided to create a card dedicated to this wonderful creator of 'stomach butterflies' Love - use it well! The angel behind this passage of words is from a series of photographs that I took during a visit back to England in the summer of 1994, in a sacred place of tended wildness in Highgate, said by many to be, "the most magical place in London". . .

Believe

The angel behind this passage of words is from a series of photographs that I took in the summer of 1994 in a sacred place of tended wildness in Highgate, said by many to be, "the most magical place in London". 'Believe -A Celebration of Hope' is the final piece in the Angel trilogy, 'Love' and 'Friendship' are the other two. As I write this, 13 years have elapsed since I took the first photographs of 'my' Angels and in that time I have had several experiences related to these images, as have others, that I cannot explain. All good I might add, which leads me to 'Believe' that there is more to this world than the visibly tangible...
